

Members of a delegation of 71 Japanese, described as "the largest and most representative group of leaders to leave Japan since the war" are on a visit to Britain after attending the World Assembly of Moral Rearmament in Switzerland. This picture shows the Mayor of Hiroshima presenting the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Frederick Rowland, with a cross made from the wood of a sacred camphor tree which was completely charred by the atom bomb. The tree was planted 400 years ago at the founding of the city of Hiroshima.
