Moral Rearmament One Hope of World UNO Executive Says

LONDON, Feb. 20.—“Moral rearmament is the one hope of the world”, said Norman J. O. Makin, president of the Security Council, United Nations Organization, speaking at a reception for UNO delegates at Clive House, Berkeley Square, London, given by Rear Admiral Sir Edward and Lady Cochrane immediately before a crucial Anglo-Soviet session of the Council.

“In the next few hours”, he told the delegates, “I have to face one of the most serious ordeals that ever man has been called to undergo. It is an extremely delicate matter and I shall be very glad of your prayers.”

Delegates Attend.

The reception was attended by delegates from America, Belgium, Switzerland, Norway, Denmark and Yugoslavia. Among the guests were Dr. Stoyan Gavrilo- vic, leader of the Commission just returned from choosing the permanent site of UNO in America; Dr. Gerbrandy, wartime prime minister of The Netherlands; Dr. Ole Bjorn Kraft, Danish defence minister, and Myrddin Evans, chairman of the governing body of the ILO.

“We live in an age of miracles”, Mr. Makin continued, “yet the very things that were for our enrichment and well being are used by man for our destruction and have brought tragedy and tears because man has not developed his spiritual qualities in keeping with the scientific and technical advances of this age. Until we can develop in the life of the people that better, higher resolve, I am afraid we shall continue to fail.” The great spiritual forces that God alone can give must fire the life of every man, woman and child if we are to attain a better and secure world.”

Mr. Makin revealed that his colleague and friend, the late Prime Minister John Curtin, had frequently told the war cabinet in Australia's darkest days that he wished it to be publicly known that he had found a new Christian experience in his life during the war years. “This experience had made possible his outstanding services to his country and he owed it in large measure to moral rearmament”, Mr. Makin declared.

Last Chance to Unite.

“At this hour”, he concluded, “when humanity is given one last chance to unite and so answer the split atom, moral rearmament is raising up a world force and a world philosophy adequate to reshape our times. I draw strength and hope from the evidence of a new spirit spreading in country after country. Moral rearmament is rendering a great service. It is the one hope of the world.”

“This book sets forth the historic faith of Britain—the over-arching, uniting idea which will enable us together to fashion the world for which all men long. In its pages is marshalled evidence of a new spirit to solve problems of home, industry, racial and national life.”

"During the war I worked with a team of scientists to perfect the science of bombing. We grew expert in aiming destruction from the air. There are weapons of aerial aggression now in existence, against which, once they are launched, there is no military defense.

"But there is one absolute and sure defense. Defense against military weapons henceforward lies in the minds of those who would use them against us. Defense lies, ere the shooting starts, in the hearts and wills of the people who would be the first to shoot.

"Many people, some famous in their sphere, are tempted to exclaim that you can't change human nature; some doubt that even if individuals change, they will change in time to influence the world. And indeed, without an ideology, a passionate fighting program for democracy, we may well not be in time to save the world.

"But Moral Re-Armament supplies the answer. It supplies the ideology. It builds the passion. It provides the global influence. Like the President of the U.N.O. Security Council, I believe it to be the one hope of the world."

Confirms Nazi War on Christianity

Secret Report on Oxford Group States Hitler Aim 'to Destroy Cross of Christ.'

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

London, Dec. 10 (A. P.).—Ever since my tour of Germany at the time of the fateful Munich conference in 1938, I have repeatedly insisted that Adolf Hitler deliberately set about to destroy Christianity in the Fatherland, substituting the Pagan creed under which he himself was a messiah, because he realized that no Christian would support his plot of murder and enslavement in Europe.

Concrete evidence that this was indeed the Nazi anti-Christ's program has now been placed in my hands here in London. This is in the form of an amazing secret report recently discovered in the files of the Reich Security Department in Berlin. Intended for official guidance, the report analyzed the operations of the Oxford Group movement (moral rearmament) under the leadership of Dr. Frank Buchman, and warned that it was an instrument of Christianity, dangerous to Nazidom. The official files in Berlin also disclosed that directives for the suppression of the Oxford Group in both Germany and the occupied countries were issued on the strength of this document.

To Destroy the Cross.

"The Oxford Group," says the document, "as a whole constitutes an attack upon the nationalism of the State, and demands the utmost watchfulness on the part of the State. It preaches revolution against the national State and has quite evidently become its Christian opponent."

Finally, in one brutally blunt line, it discloses der Fuehrer's purpose to smash Christianity in Germany: "They (the Oxford Group) encourage their members to place themselves fully beneath the Christian Cross, and to oppose the cross of the Swastika with the Cross of Christ, as the former (the Swastika) seeks to destroy the Cross of Christ."

Sees Link to Diplomacy.

The report reveals that the secret police regarded the Oxford Group as a force working "to bring about new political and ideological conditions in the Reich. . . . At the very moment we (Nazi officialdom) are making efforts to suppress the Christian conviction of sin, which is regarded as the first step toward the enslavement of the Germans, a movement is emanating from the Anglo-Saxons, who are racially related to us, which regards just this consciousness of sin as a basis for a change in personal and national relationships."

The document stresses the bond between democracy and Christianity, and says that "the Oxford Group supplies the Christian religious garment for world democratic aims." It adds: "The group and the democracies supplement each other and render each other's work fruitful. They face the common enemy, that is, all nationalistic conceptions of life which democracy opposes and fights because of its political ideology, the Oxford Group opposes because of its primitive Christian arguments. Their common opposition to the modern conception of race and nation has brought them still closer together."

The work of the Oxford Group in other countries, including America and Britain, is dealt with, and the document sums up group activities in this fashion: "Seldom has any religious revival movement succeeded as the group has in establishing itself in such a relatively short time in almost all the countries of the world. . . . Under the slogan of Moral Rearmament the group has become the pacemaker of anglo-American diplomacy. The anti-German character of the brotherhood of the Western democracies comes out clearly in the whole propaganda for the slogan, which has the delighted support of all the Jewish propagandists of world democracy."

"I would like to tell you something about the Oxford Group in Norway," says Fredrik Ramm. "There are thousands of us who would describe our meeting with it as the happiest moment of our lives."

"From the first day of the German invasion Fredrik Ramm stood boldly and uncompromisingly for faith and justice, and his courageous articles in both Tidens Tegn and Morgenbladet were of great moral importance. It was natural that he was one of the very first the Germans arrested. Because he could not compromise with evil, he was sentenced to life imprisonment and taken to Germany to allow him no opportunity to influence people in Norway.

"After three years of suffering he is now dead—of double pneumonia the Germans said. It is one of the methods of execution commonly used in concentration camps.

"His long time in prison developed and deepened him. His life in these years resembles that of a great Christian martyr. He helped and strengthened everyone around him. His life and message from prison will never be forgotten."

THE HON. C. J. HAMBRO in Nordmanns-Forbundet, the monthly publication of the World League of Norsemen, November 1943.

THE OXFORD GROUP

ON 6th February, 1946, we published a news item headed 'Europe and the Oxford Group,' in which statements by two distinguished visitors to Oxford associated the University with the Group. These paragraphs caused some surprise, and we have received both congratulations and criticism for printing them; but particularly have we been taken to task for not making some effort to dissociate Oxford from the Group.

We believe that this is impossible, for the two are, for good or ill, quite irrevocably associated. What is important, however, is the effect the Group's activities may have on the University and, this being our immediate concern, we have been making inquiries about them. Their professed aim is to spread Christianity; in the words of their founder, Dr. Frank Buchman: 'The Oxford Group is a Christian revolution whose concern is vital Christianity. It has fought from the beginning to answer the strategy of a world-wide militant materialism with the fire of a great Christian awakening.' Certainly the issue before mankind to-day is a moral one; as Group-Captain Cheshire emphasized in his talk to the Services' Association on Friday, there is no technical defence against the Atomic Bomb—what is required is a change of heart on the part of Man. This change is seen, by the Oxford Group, as the successful outcome of the struggle between the forces of good and evil, between Christianity and Materialism. They claim, and how rightly, that if this battle is won war will never again be possible, and they see themselves as a world force helping to win it and to bring about a change in human nature. So far so good; no one would quarrel with their undoubted right to attempt this, still less with them for achieving any kind of spiritual life in such days of blatant materialism. But what of their success? A remarkable testimony to the far-reaching effects of their work has been paid by, of all bodies, the Gestapo. In a recent letter to The Times, signed, among others, by Sir Cyril Norwood and Sir David Ross, attention was drawn to the recently discovered secret report prepared by the Head Office of the Reich Security Department, which states categorically the Nazis' determination to destroy Christianity. It denounced the Oxford Group for 'uncompromisingly taking up a frontal position against National Socialism,' and of its influence, it said that the Group 'breathes the spirit of Western Democracy. It supplies the Christian garment for world democratic aims. The Group and the democracies supplement each other and render each other's work fruitful.' It is a very remarkable tribute indeed to be singled out for especial attention by so destructively efficient an organization as the Gestapo, and it is particularly significant that they identify the Group with the Christian idea behind democracy—a claim which the Group itself has always made. Supporting this, too, is the testimony of the leaders of the resistance movement in Europe. Men such as Arne Fjellbu, Bishop of Trondheim, and Phillipe Mottu, who know of the work done by the Oxford Group in the Norwegian and European underground, all speak of leadership and sacrifice—for which they give the credit to the Group and to Oxford. President Truman, Lord Bennett and Mr. Curtin also are men who would not lightly praise with enthusiasm, yet they have told of the wonderful example given by the Group in the U.S.A., Canada and Australia.

There is space only for a brief mention of the vast mass of evidence—and it is evidence and not propaganda—which shows that the Group is an unusually successful movement for spreading Christianity. What then of the other side of the question? We have searched for documented criticism of the Group but have found only rumours that there is something 'not quite right' with them. But always the bearer of such stories has been unable to adduce further evidence.

We are faced, then, until the Group's opponents produce some evidence to the contrary, with the inescapable conclusion that the Oxford Group is a much maligned body. Certainly Oxford has no need to be ashamed of any real spiritual crusade that she fosters—she has nursed many in her time and, indeed, what could be more fitting for a University with the motto Dominus Illuminatio Mea? The Isis has always reserved the right to say what it thinks, and especially to speak without fear for those who are not fairly treated. Our interest in the Oxford Group is aroused because we feel that their opponents, so vitriolic and yet so vague, have held the floor too long and failed to substantiate their charges.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 76th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

NATIONAL MEETING FOR MORAL RE-ARMAMENT

HON. HARRY S. TRUMAN

OF MISSOURI

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Thursday, June 8, 1939

Mr. TRUMAN. Mr. President, on Sunday, June 4, there was held in Constitution Hall, Washington, the National Meeting for Moral Re-Armament. I had the honor at that time to present the following message from the President of the United States, which opened that great assembly:

The underlying strength of the world must consist in the moral fiber of her citizens. A program of moral re-armament for the world cannot fail, therefore, to lessen the danger of armed conflict. Such moral re-armament, to be most highly effective, must receive support on a world-wide basis.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

That meeting was sponsored by members of the Cabinet and Members of the Senate and House of Representatives, and the invitation to the meeting contained messages from the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, the Attorney General, the Speaker of the House, the leader of the Senate majority, former President Hoover, the Senator from Kansas [Mr. Capper], the Senator from New York [Mr. Wagner], Hon. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., the minority leader in the House of Representatives, and Dr. Alexis Carrel. There was also one from John J. Pershing, General of the Armies of the United States in the last war, which I wish to read:

This moral re-armament should enlist the support of all thinking people. There is a spiritual emotion which underlies all true patriotism, and good citizenship itself is dependent upon the high sense of moral obligation of the people. Today, confronted by conditions so threatening to world peace, we must re-dedicate ourselves to the faith of our forefathers if we are to be worthy of our heritage.

JOHN J. PERSHING.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the Oxford Group. There were messages from the House of Lords of Great Britain signed by 25 members of that body, and a message from the House of Commons signed by 240 members of that body. Messages also came from the Netherlands, from the Union of South Africa, from British labor, and from great diplomats the world over.

I think it is particularly appropriate, Mr. President, to record these messages from Great Britain in the proceedings of the Senate today because of the presence here of the King and Queen of Great Britain, and because of the fact that included among the signatories are men who both personally and officially are associated with Their Majesties.

"I have known this group since June 4, 1939, when I read a message from the President to the national mass meeting for Moral Re-Armament in Constitution Hall, Washington. I was struck at that time by the clarity with which they saw the dangers threatening America, and the zeal and intelligence with which they set about rousing the country. There is not a single industrial bottleneck I can think of which could not be broken in a matter of weeks if this crowd were given the green light to go full steam ahead. We need this spirit in industry. We need it in the nation. For if America doesn't catch this spirit, we will be lucky to win the war, and certain to lose the peace. With it there is no limit to what we can do for America, and America for the world."

"You Can Defend America" Cavalcade across the nation.

The "splendid contribution to patriotism" made by the Moral Re-Armament volunteers who produced the revue, "You Can Defend America," is noted by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in correspondence between himself and the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody, late headmaster of Groton School, the great educator who shaped the lives of many famous Americans.

Dear Mr. Peabody:

March 25, 1942

... What you write about the revue, "You Can Defend America," which you saw in Orlando, interested me very much. We need more things like that to maintain and strengthen the national morale. I am informed that this revue has been organized by a group of volunteer actors on a non-commercial basis. This organization, as I understand it, goes from one community to another as arrangements are made for their appearance by some group active in national defense. From all accounts they are making a splendid contribution to patriotism and I hope a large number of communities will have the benefit of witnessing a performance.

If Eleanor were here she would join me in love to you and Mrs. Peabody.

Affectionately yours,

Dr. Buchman Sums Up Objects Of Movement and Tells of Race To Renake Men and Nations

The world wide forces of moral rearmament moved in on Treasure Island Tuesday, broadcasting to the Nation and to far away places on the globe a message for peace and unity based upon MRA's four standards—honesty, unselfishness, love and purity.

Moral rearmament was summed up as follows by Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the Oxford group and initiator of MRA:

"It is a race with time to renake men and nations, to create a new way of thinking, a new personality, without being accustomed to persons. It's not a new denomination but a new determination above creed, party and point of view."

The Star Says . .

THIS is a time for stock-taking of the forces in America that are working for unity or dis-unity of our nation. For thru unity we will live and without it we will perish.

Re-Arming Of Our Souls

There is in America a small band of morale builders, mostly British, but with an American leader, to whom we all owe a debt for the very special brand of service they are giving this country. This group, whose work is known as Moral Re-Armament, and its leader, Dr. Frank Buchman, of Pennsylvania, bring to us a 20-year experience in morale building. They work to remove frictions and discords in family life, in labor unions, in political circles.

Yet this is no professional up-lift society. These people have not asked nor will they ask a single penny of personal profit or advantage. Nor are they mere visionaries, seeking a Utopia on earth. They are practical experts in morale building with a long list of accomplishments in promoting unity in all parts of America including our own Pacific coast.

These people have won the respect of organized religion, labor unions, employers, leading members of congress, the army and the navy. In our own state and our own city they are welcomed as individuals and as a group for the service they perform.

The Star has had an opportunity to observe this group of people for more than two years. In all that time there has never been a moment when they were not working for American unity thru morale building and industrial teamwork.

The Star salutes a fine job of intelligent unselfishness.

RT. HON. JOHN CURTIN, the late Prime Minister of Australia, at a critical time of war in a broadcast to Australia, called for subjection of self interest and ill will between employer and employee and the building of sound homes, teamwork in industry and cooperation throughout the nation. "By so doing we will be a nation that is morally and spiritually rearmed, and be adequate not only to meet the tasks of war but also the tasks of peace."

The Forgotten Factor

I COMMEND YOU on securing a presentation of "The Forgotten Factor" at the Diamond Jubilee Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

The war record of American and Canadian labor is outstanding. Victories now being won on the battlefronts of the world were made possible because soldiers of production in both the United States and Canada measured up to all requirements. We have responded to the needs of the armed forces of the United Nations.

We must now be conscious of our responsibility in the building of a new world. Service in this direction will be just as important as our contribution to the war effort. We will be called to demonstrate the same qualities of faith, courage and sacrifice.

The president of one of the unions in Cape Breton, who had been a prime mover in slowdowns that lost 400,000 tons of coal, formed "Pull Together Clubs" among his men. Each 5% increase in production was worth 50,000 men to Canada's war effort.

BOB AND CHRISTINE TURNBULL through their home created an entirely new spirit and attitude in industry in their area.

Un message d'unité et de concorde

La présentation de la revue
"Canadiens, rallions-nous", un grand succès.

Un vibrant message en faveur de l'unité nationale au Canada a été lancé par la présentation, hier soir de la revue "Canadiens, rallions-nous", en l'Auditorium de la Sun Life. Cette formule nouvelle de propagande en faveur d'un meilleur effort de guerre a été accueillie d'une façon très favorable par la foule nombreuse des invités qui a applaudi avec chaleur les tableaux et les chansons patriotiques.

Le thème général est celui-ci. Un effort de guerre bien ordonné exige l'unité parmi les divers éléments de la population. La coopération des classes et des races est essentielle à la victoire. Dans la famille, à l'usine et dans la société en général, la concorde et la charité sont plus que jamais nécessaires en face du danger et pour réaliser, au cours de l'après-guerre, un ordre social plus juste. Rien ne sert de chercher à réformer les autres, si nous ne commençons pas d'abord à nous réformer nous-mêmes.

Un mot d'ordre pour l'après-guerre

C'est en somme un magnifique mot d'ordre de charité et de bonne entente qui se dégage des 10 tableaux présentés dans cette revue. Il ne faudrait pas croire cependant que sa portée se limite à notre effort de guerre; il dépasse les cadres du présent conflit pour envisager dans l'avenir une société nouvelle où les Canadiens de toutes les races, de toutes les croyances et de toutes les classes pourront vivre dans l'unité et la concorde.

Le programme comprenait les tableaux suivants: "Canadiens, rallions-nous", "Comment allez-vous?", "Une ville quelconque", "Notre oncle embouteillage", "Tenant l'usine en marche", "Les travailleurs soutenant l'armée", "Nous sommes tous dans le même four", "Un foyer idéal", "Un abri anti-bombe à Londres" et l'interprétation française de "Canadiens, rallions-nous".

Les deux meilleurs tableaux sont sans ce doute "Un foyer idéal" et "Un abri anti-bombe à Londres". Ils constituent us deux une satire animée des divergences inutiles qui existent parfois dans les familles et dans la société.

Dialogue et chansons composés par les acteurs

La revue avec ses chansons et ses dialogues a été composée par les 35 acteurs qui l'ont présentée, hier soir. Ce sont des gens de toutes les classes de la société. Une des actrices de ce groupe anonyme qui prenait part au programme est une jeune mère anglaise réfugiée au pays. Elle a su interpréter avec beaucoup de réalisme les sentiments qui doivent animer les habitants de Londres sous les bombardements. Dans une courte allocution prononcée en anglais et en français, elle a remercié les Canadiens pour ce qu'ils font pour vaincre l'ennemi commun.

M. B.-M. Hallward, de Montréal, a également prononcé une courte allocution en français et en anglais pour lancer un appel en faveur d'un vrai patriotisme basé sur les forces morales de tous les Canadiens.

A New Year, A New Decade!

What Will Seattle Do About It?

Editorial

WE APPROACH a new year---a new decade.

It's time we took stock as to what they will bring to Seattle.

Looking back over the last 10-year period, there is little we can find about which Seattle can be proud. Putting all due blame on the depression and other economic drags, there was still too much dissension and too little progress.

To the nation at large Seattle came out of the 30's with a black eye and a bad

TURNING a new leaf, like charity, begins at home.

And so The Star apologizes publicly for the mistakes it has made in the past. Perhaps it has been too free to run down the ideas of others — too prone to insist on ideas of its own.

And on this eve of making new resolutions, it figuratively offers its hand to its competitors and to all others who want to honestly and conscientiously help to build Seattle, with a pledge that it will do all in its power to co-operate.

We believe that if we, as a city, can attain more unity, which after all is merely less individual pride and more respect for the other fellow's ideas, we will be on our way. That will automatically bring about the submerging of old feuds and unnecessary rivalries, which must be forgotten if the decade of the 40's is going to bring the progress to which Seattle is entitled.

AS A specific plan for bringing about a rebirth of the old-time Seattle Spirit and a program in which every person can co-operate, The Star offers this:

Why not a "Round Table" where, frequently and as an informal group, members representing business, labor, property, farmers, local governments, the three newspapers, and other major divisions of Seattle life could sit down and discuss our public problems?

If such a group, representing all diversified interests, were to examine the facts as these problems came along, perhaps reporting back to the public its findings, it seems to us it would go far toward building a unanimity of effort toward progress and furnish an effective bar to the opposition of minorities stirred by selfish interests and not acting for the public good.

it happen a dozen times, at the expense of new industries that wanted to locate here, and at the expense of the few civic-thinking and aggressive leaders of which Seattle can boast.

The question is: We are all striving for a common goal. How are we going to attain it?

The decade of the 40's must be better. All of us must help. How are we going to do it?

COMMITTEE

"I doubt if I can add anything to what has already been said during this magnificent evening. 'You Can Defend America', as exemplified by this remarkable cast, has the inspirational value to create that spirit, that kind of unity, for which America is looking.

"On behalf of the Steel Workers, and of course the C.I.O., I desire to express to the members of this cast our wholehearted and very sincere appreciation for the wonderful production we have seen here tonight."

PHILIP MURRAY, President United Steel Workers of America, and President Congress of Industrial Organizations.

"Only a new spirit in man can bring a new spirit in industry. Industry can be the pioneer of a new order, where national service replaces selfishness, and where industrial planning is based upon the guidance of God. When Labor, Management and Capital become partners under God's guidance, then industry takes its true place in national life."

M. R. A. Praised By Truman as 'Vital Service'

Senator Says It Has Aided War Industry; Others in Congress Also Indorse It

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP).—The Moral Re-Armament movement was endorsed today by Senator Harry S. Truman, Democrat, of Missouri, as a "vital national service."

In addition to joining with other legislators and public figures in a foreword to a Moral Re-Armament pamphlet, "the fight to serve," Senator Truman called a press conference to urge support for the movement, which he explained stemmed from the Oxford Group, initiated by Frank Buchman.

The Missouri Senator emphasized he was speaking for himself, not as chairman of the War Investigating Committee he heads.

"But," he added, "I have noticed that the chief difficulty in our war industrial program is usually the human factor. Suspicions, rivalries, apathy, greed lie behind most of the bottlenecks."

"These problems, to which the Moral Re-Armament program is finding an effective solution, are the most urgent of any in our whole production picture."

"What we now need is a fighting faith which will last twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week and fifty-two weeks a year."

"We need to create a permanent incentive in the heart of every man in office and workshop. This can only come by installing personal qualities of patriotism and self-sacrifice based on moral and spiritual principles."

"This is where the Moral Re-Armament group comes in. Where others have stood back and criticized, they have rolled up their sleeves and gone to work. They have already achieved remarkable results in bringing teamwork into industry, on the principle not of 'who's right' but of 'what's right.'"

Senator Truman, a member of the Baptist Church since he was seventeen, recalled that as early as 1941 he had seen M. R. A. men in action in west coast airplane plants.

"Since then I've met groups of them wherever I've gone," he added.

He estimated that 100 members of the House and Senate are sympathetic toward the movement. Senators Arthur Capper, Republican, of Kansas, and Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, of Utah, and Representatives James D. Wadsworth, Republican, of New York, and Clarence F. Lea, Democrat, of California were among those signing the pamphlet's foreword, which said "attempts have recently been made to misrepresent the purposes and nature of Moral

LABOR BEACON

Labor's New Weapon

In a world where the forces of disruption and materialism are on the march, we, who have long lived and fought for a democracy of living and thinking, have a right—and a need—to tremble. For unless we as individuals meet the challenge, we are going down to our destruction.

These forces of slavery, masquerading under a guise of democracy, toss all human rights aside. To them the state, the dictator, the prison of regulated work and play and thought are paramount to the dignity of the individual and his soul. They spread their doctrines into every walk of life along a world-wide front. They take their places in the churches and pervert the true communism of the spirit which is Christianity. They take their places in labor and mislead thousands, holding up the golden grapes of promise above the trap of political and economic bondage. They sneak into business under a great show of concern for the worker and the public and mask their real efforts to divide and conquer and weaken our economic and social structure. You can call them communists, or fascists, or isolationists or reactionaries or radicals—they all add up to the same thing, destruction.

Labor has it in its power to take the lead in fighting these forces. It can rout them and give the world a new way of thinking and living. It can out-manuever them at every turn if it will shoulder the fight.

Last summer, we along with hundreds of other labor men from the AFL, the CIO, the UMW and from Europe, came into personal contact with the one great weapon labor has to fight these alien ideologies. That weapon is called Moral Re-Armament. MRA has developed on a global scale, an effective positive counter strategy to out-plan, out-pace and defeat the anti-democratic ideologies. The German Gestapo feared MRA and regarded it as the spearhead of democracy.

It has and is forging a super-national force of men and women of all ages and races, who live an ideology of honesty and unselfishness and

Famed Teamwork Drama

Michigan Host to Unusual Play
Backed by Murray, Truman, Perding

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (Special to The Worker) — The play "The Moral Re-Armament Industrial Drama" was presented by the Grand Rapids Industrial Drama Guild, a group of workers from the Grand Rapids area, at the Grand Rapids Hotel, last night. The play, which was written and directed by the Guild, is a powerful statement of the need for teamwork and cooperation in industry. It was backed by prominent figures in the labor movement, including Murray, Truman, and Perding.

unitedly fight to establish it in home, union, industry and nation. The cumulative effect of a change in heart in hundreds of thousands of people in sixty or more countries is setting liberty, justice and freedom on the march again across the world.

Labor with its great power in America and so many other countries, armed with the positive ideology of MRA can break the powers of fear, hate and greed. It can make its wage, hours and conditions gains permanent, and establish justice and security for all people.

We know that this is not idle dreaming. We have seen and felt it work. We have met the men and women who are leading the fight. We have talked with labor leaders, business men and common workers who have seen MRA at work. We have seen the unbelievable miracles it can accomplish. It breaks down chiseling, cheating, ruthlessness, doublecrossing and dishonesty. It puts in their stead honesty, teamwork, loyalty and understanding. It makes seemingly unsurmountable obstacles fade away and it lifts the dignity of the individual to high levels. It is democracy's outstanding champion. It is labor's greatest friend.

Armed with that philosophy, what can labor do?—you say. Here are four ways in which every union man can make democracy a force to unite the nation and the world:

By accepting his full responsibility of thinking and planning for his union and beyond that for his nation as a whole.

By fighting for a new industrial philosophy of service to the nation, before profit and personal advantage.

By making his job and his union a pattern of teamwork for the community and the nation.

By building sound homes as the foundation of a sound labor movement.

In such a program every men and woman have their part to play now. It's a big enough program to give labor the objective and force that will advance not just one group but the welfare and progress of all mankind.

SOUND HOMES

"In all the thinking and planning which we are doing for the welfare of our country and Empire—yes, and concern for other countries too—we women, as homemakers, have a great part to play.

"The restoration and maintenance of the home for the welfare of the whole community depends upon its family life—upon homes which are strong, stable and Christian. The most essential of all industries is the making and keeping of the home."

THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND

FRANK N. D. BUCHMAN at Mackinac Island with JOHN V. RIFFE, International Representative of United Steel Workers of America, C.I.O., and JACK SCOTT, United Automobile Workers, C.I.O. of Dearborn, Michigan, with their families.

"How can I give my heart to my country if I can't give it to my home? It is only when we start building into our homes the standards of absolute honesty and unselfishness, the ideas of give and take, simple apology and faithfulness 'until death us do part' that we can start building lasting and worthwhile things into the life of our country."

F.B.I. HEAD LINKS ISMS WITH YOUTH CRIME WAVE

J. EDGAR HOOVER, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, recently warned the nation that juvenile delinquents are spearheading an army of 6,000,000 law-breakers in a new crime wave which threatens to rival the gangster era of the roaring '20's.

"The arrests of girls under 18 years of age have increased 198% since 1939," he said, "while arrests of boys under 18 years of age have increased 48% for homicide, 70% for rape, 72% for assault and 101% for drunkenness and driving while intoxicated.

"More and more I am convinced the fault lies directly in the homes," he said.

Warning against "the purveyors of alien isms who seek to transform America to a land of class struggle," he declared: "It behooves us to be on guard for an enemy that brazenly and openly has advocated the corruption of America."

Teen-Agers Present Own Show to High School, Civic Groups

Acting is only a sideline — a means to an end—for a group of actors now playing before large audiences among Southern California high schools and civic groups.

They are members of Moral Re-Armament and believe that their self-written play, "Drugstore Revolution," is the best way to present their message to the young people of the country.

Average age of the 24 members in the group is 19, and they have already played 28 performances to 37,000 people in Michigan, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia besides California. Their most recent appearances were before Polytechnic, Garfield and Franklin High Schools here last week.

Other local schools have booked the group for future appearances.

Besides writing their own play, the teen-agers built their own scenery and recently completed their own movie, which they plan to show before 'teen-age audiences.

Leading roles in the "Drugstore Revolution" are taken by Jackie Scott, son of a Detroit labor leader, and Miss Elie Purdy of Ridgewood, N. J. Another member of the cast is Rollo Eberhardt, former captain of Oxford High School's football team.

DRUG STORE REVOLUTION

Their aim is to see that the youth of the country, together with their families, spearhead a revolution that will make America think straight and live great.

"If we are going to be successful in our fight against the legacy of Hitler, we must begin with ourselves. We must restore and fully reinstate our own ideals and standards. We must restore shame and the readiness to be ashamed. This can only be done by education. Herein lie the challenging responsibility and opportunity of the University and the Church and all other educational institutions."

DR. DANIEL L. MARSH, President, Boston University.

"I feel the presentation before our Board of Education by the teen-age group of Moral Re-Armament was a most unusual and stimulating experience.

"In this particular time of unrest, uncertainty and chaos, the minds of youth all over the nation must be turned to those values that will stimulate good citizenship. This movement is accomplishing this and I wish it the greatest success in attaining its objectives."

LAWRENCE LARRABEE, President, Los Angeles Board of Education.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC

"I was thinking last night of what a privilege is mine in having a family whose longing for our return carries also a sense of commission because you want us to return, not to softness and ease and the materialism that would mock these days, but to the eternal warfare of the spirit that alone can give them fruit. It might be called the paradox of 'returning soldiers who go home to fight!' This thought means a lot to me because it is at the heart of the problem of building the new world. We can be sure that unless, increasingly, our soldiers return to spiritual warfare, the new world will most definitely not be built.

"This time has been incomparably the worst I've seen in the military sense . . . No man, no society, no civilization can begin to thank those men (the front-line infantry) for their fight to throw back the onrushing forces of hate. God alone can reward them, and He will . . . The future is rich in promise. 'This day the noise of battle, the next the victor's song!' God bless you all. Fight on! We march as one."

From the last letter of PFC. JOHN H. HOGAN, killed in action on Okinawa, May 7, 1945.

HOME TO FIGHT!

"From the illusion, chaos and confusion of the 1920s ideologies sprang to life that mobilized millions and led to future wars.

"We have come home to fight with all we have so that the greatest ideology of all time may inspire our nation and every nation.

"We joined the fight for MRA long before the war of arms began. It armed us and thousands more with a fighting philosophy that carried us through the war to victory.

"Today we have enlisted again in Moral Re-Armament. The existence of this force in being is the most significant difference between 1919 and 1946."

Army personnel specially released for the work of Moral Re-Armament by the Chief of Staff, U.S. War Department, include Capt. J. T. Caulfeild, A.C., Headquarters U.S. Air Forces in Europe; Capt. R. STATESMANSHIP

FOR THE ATOMIC AGE

Democracy Finds an Ideology

LET US not fail to grasp this supreme chance to establish a worldwide rule of reason—to create an enduring peace under the guidance of God.

PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN,
June 1945

REAL PEACE in the world cannot be established by the force of great powers, however overwhelming. There must come a change of heart if peace is to be something better than an uneasy interval between war.

PRIME MINISTER CLEMENT ATTLEE,
September 1945

THE FOCUS of the problem does not lie in the atom; it resides in the hearts of men.

HENRY L. STIMSON,
March 1946

IN THESE three years we must remould the relationships of all men of all nations. There is not an hour to be wasted. There is not a day to be lost.

WINSTON CHURCHILL,
August 1945

THE ATOMIC bomb is still here, and as a bomb it is the enemy of all mankind. Its detonator is fear and hate. And no bargaining will do any lasting good which does not bargain away these twin evils.

THE NEW YORK TIMES,
September 1945

TWO GREAT ideologies—democracy in the West and Communism in the East—find themselves face to face with the desperate need for mutual understanding in finding common ground upon which to strive for peace for both. . . . We need but one rule. What is right? What is justice? There let America take her stand.

SENATOR ARTHUR H. VANDENBURG,
February 1946

THE WORLD awaits an inspired answer from statesmen as well as the ordinary man. Yes, inspired statesmen guided not alone by human wisdom, but by that added help which sees and recognizes the Supreme Plan. There must be an adequate plan for the world's ills, and if God has a plan, He also has God-prepared instruments.

Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman
INTERLAKEN, 1938

From

"Remaking The World"

By Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman

MRA IS the triumph of a God-given thought. A re-emphasis of old truths was let loose in the world, simple, homespun truths—the guidance of God and a change of heart.

WASHINGTON, D.C., 1939

THERE must come a spiritual dynamic which will change human nature and remake men and nations. There must come a spiritual authority which will be accepted everywhere by everyone. Only so will order come out of chaos in national and international affairs.

DENMARK, 1935

NATIONAL and world problems remain the same because the root problem—human nature—remains unsolved.

LONDON, 1936

MRA IS a race with time to remake men and nations.

LONDON, 1939

EVERYBODY wants to see the other fellow change. Every nation wants to see the other nation change. But everybody is waiting for the other fellow to begin.

DENMARK, 1935

THE WORLD must declare a moratorium on hate and fear, personally and nationally. The new peace pact must have as its preamble that all contracting parties, all nations, live on a basis of no hate, no fear, no greed.

WORLD BROADCAST, Sept. 1939

WE MUST find that answer that will give satisfaction and security to all—an answer that is above party, that is above class, that is above faction, that is above nations.

INTERLAKEN, 1938

AMERICA must discover her rightful ideology. It springs from her Christian heritage and is her only adequate answer in the battle against materialism and all other 'isms'.
