

CONCERT: Springbok Stampede (Lyric Theatre).

The enthusiasm and sincerity of this group permeates the whole show, as the Stampedeers sing their way through a programme of lively and catchy music.

Well produced, the show is remarkable for the excellent harmonising and obvious enjoyment of the singers whose natural cheerfulness make one feel that the future is something to look forward to.

The numbers, sung in both English and Afrikaans, with a bit of German and Swahili thrown in now and then, delighted the audience and their admiration was evident.
